* Mixed-model repeated-measures analyses were used to assess between-group differences (solanezumab group minus placebo group) in the modeled changes from baseline to week 80. The dependent variable was the change from the baseline score at each postbaseline visit during the treatment period. Fixed effects were baseline scores on outcome measures, study-drug assignment (solanezumab or placebo), baseline MMSE score (mild or moderate Alzheimer's disease), visit and treatment-by-visit interaction, concomitant use of cholinesterase inhibitors or memantine at baseline (yes or no), and age at baseline, and the random effect was participant identification. Measurements of amyloid-beta (A β) in the cerebrospinal fluid (CSF) were available at baseline and follow-up for 25 patients in the placebo group and 20 patients in the solanezumab group. CI denotes confidence interval.

[†] The primary outcomes were the changes from baseline to week 80 in scores on the ADAS-cog11 and the Alzheimer's Disease Cooperative Study-Activities of Daily Living scale (ADCS-ADL; range, 0 to 78, with lower scores indicating worse functioning).¹⁰

[‡] Scores on the 14-item cognitive subscale of the Alzheimer's Disease Assessment Scale (ADAS-cog14) range from 0 to 90, with higher scores indicating greater cognitive impairment.⁹

[§] Scores on the Clinical Dementia Rating-Sum of Boxes (CDR-SB) range from 0 to 18, with higher scores indicating worse functioning.^{11,12}

[¶] Scores on the Neuropsychiatric Inventory (NPI) range from 0 to 144, with higher scores indicating worse functioning.¹³
